Dear Member,

We have been asked by a number of residents if we could advise our members of a growing problem with tradespeople and their habit of playing music etc rather loud while on site.

Out of common courtesy for other residents, it would be appreciated if tradespersons employed to work on people's property be asked to keep the volume low on any musical devices. Although we understand that when any work being carried out it is always recognised that radios and music helps the people working and makes the day more pleasurable, nearby neighbours maybe not so tolerate to music etc being too loud especially if they want to relax in their own gardens.

Can we therefore ask our tradespeople to be a bit more appreciative of people living in a built up area and reduce any loud noise. Thank you.

Kind Regards,

Ron

New sponsors help make City Jam the largest street art festival in Europe

Southend City Jam, the fantastic street art festival returning to Southend on 1 to 3 September is now even bigger thanks to the support from three new sponsors, c2c, VelFit, and Mark One Hire.

c2c is the award-winning train operator running services between Fenchurch Street and Shoeburyness, serving 26 stations in East London and South Essex, and 7 stations in Southend.

VelFit is an Essex based company that install, repair and replace VELUX windows and blinds throughout Kent, Essex, Hertfordshire and Suffolk. The entire VelFit team will be providing some much-needed help with the build and takedown of the temporary installations, as well as stewarding throughout the festival.

Mark One Hire is an Essex-based tool, equipment and powered access hire company. The local business will provide support equipment for the festival including cherry pickers to ensure the artists can safely reach the walls.

The added support from these new sponsors means that City Jam organisers have been able to expand what was already a big festival into the largest street art festival in Europe. With over 200 local, national and international artists attending, it's set to be a jam-packed three days of incredible street art.

Further information regarding the event, including full details of all the artists involved, volunteering, and sponsorship opportunities can be found on the City Jam website.

When you can see Red Arrows and Battle of Britain Memorial Flight planes fly over Essex this weekend in preparations for Clacton Airshow

Residents living in parts of Essex could be treated to a mini display from the Red Arrows and other aircraft this weekend when they travel to and from Southend Airport. The Typhoon display team, Battle of Britain Memorial Flight (BBMF) and Red Arrows aircraft are all scheduled to arrive at Southend Airport later this week ahead of airshows nearby.

According to the Military Airshows website, the Red Arrows will arrive on Saturday evening (7.57pm) with the BBMF aircraft landing on Friday (August 18) in the afternoon. The Typhoons will arrive on Thursday (August 17) morning.

Their presence in Essex is to be prepared for Airshows at Eastbourne, Felixstowe and Clacton. The 30th anniversary of the Clacton Airshow is scheduled to take place on August 24 and 25.

Exact take off and landing times for the Typhoons and BBMF aircraft is unknown, but there are some timings available for the Red Arrows. It's understood they will take off at 2.10pm on August 20 on their way to Felixstowe.

There will be a brief flypast for Southend at 2.53pm before returning to the airport at 2.54pm. They'll then depart at 5.15pm for Eastbourne, returning at 6.01pm. They'll depart Southend for RAF Waddington at 8.15pm on August 20.

A statement issued by London Southend Airport said: "Please note that we are not hosting public access tours this year; public safety is of the utmost importance, as is maintaining and adhering to strict safety and security regulations around the aircraft and airfield whilst commercial operations continue to take place.

"We understand that people will want to view the planes, regardless of the above. With that in mind, we are sharing an approximate timetable of their arrival. If you do choose to visit the airport site, please do not put ladders against the perimeter fence and ensure litter is cleared/taken home with you.

"Any form of abuse towards airport staff will not be tolerated. Car parks are open as normal, but you will be expected to pay the regular rates."
